

UCHealth CT School for 2024

New Career Opportunities for Radiologic Technologists!

2024 CT Classes are now online!

Did you know that UC Health has their own online CT school? This program is certified by the Colorado Division of Private Occupational Schools and award college semester credits. These credits are recognized by the ARRT as approved academic courses and are worth 16 “category A” CEU’s per semester credit. These credits are transferable to most colleges and can count toward your bachelor’s degree at most institutions (in healthcare).

UCHealth School of Radiologic Technology – CT school

9 semester credits (67 Cat A CEU’s)

The UCHealth School of Radiologic Technology – CT program, is a 4 month program that consists of both classes and clinical. Tuition costs are $3000 and qualify for reimbursement by UCH. Classes take place online, with a live lecture being held and recorded every Monday at 8am. Classes for 2024 are tentatively scheduled for 2/12/24-6/3/24. We are taking applications now for this class. Please go to our website for application information. (dates subject to change)

Clinical Requirements for CT

The student should plan to complete at least 16 hours of clinic each week. Shifts will be scheduled in increments of 4 to 10 hours each, with no more than 36 hours of clinic being completed in a week. Clinical hours will be scheduled by the student at any UCHealth facility with an emergency department. It is the student’s responsibility to ensure their current employer will meet the clinical requirements and to allow the student to complete the hours at that facility.

Students are not to be clocked in for their current job while completing the clinical requirements. Students will complete a total of 256 clinical hours and 125 competencies with the ARRT.
